PREFACE

Having had personal experience of the need for a Complete Index to the MAGAZINE OF AMERICAN HISTORY, which should obviate the frequent necessity for referring to almost every one of its volumes in order to find the desired item, I have compiled this from the indexes of the several volumes. I have also re-arranged the items in many cases, so as to render them easier to find, and have separated the references to the Indians and the various Societies, and also put the Book Reviews by themselves; all of which changes I think will make the work much more convenient.

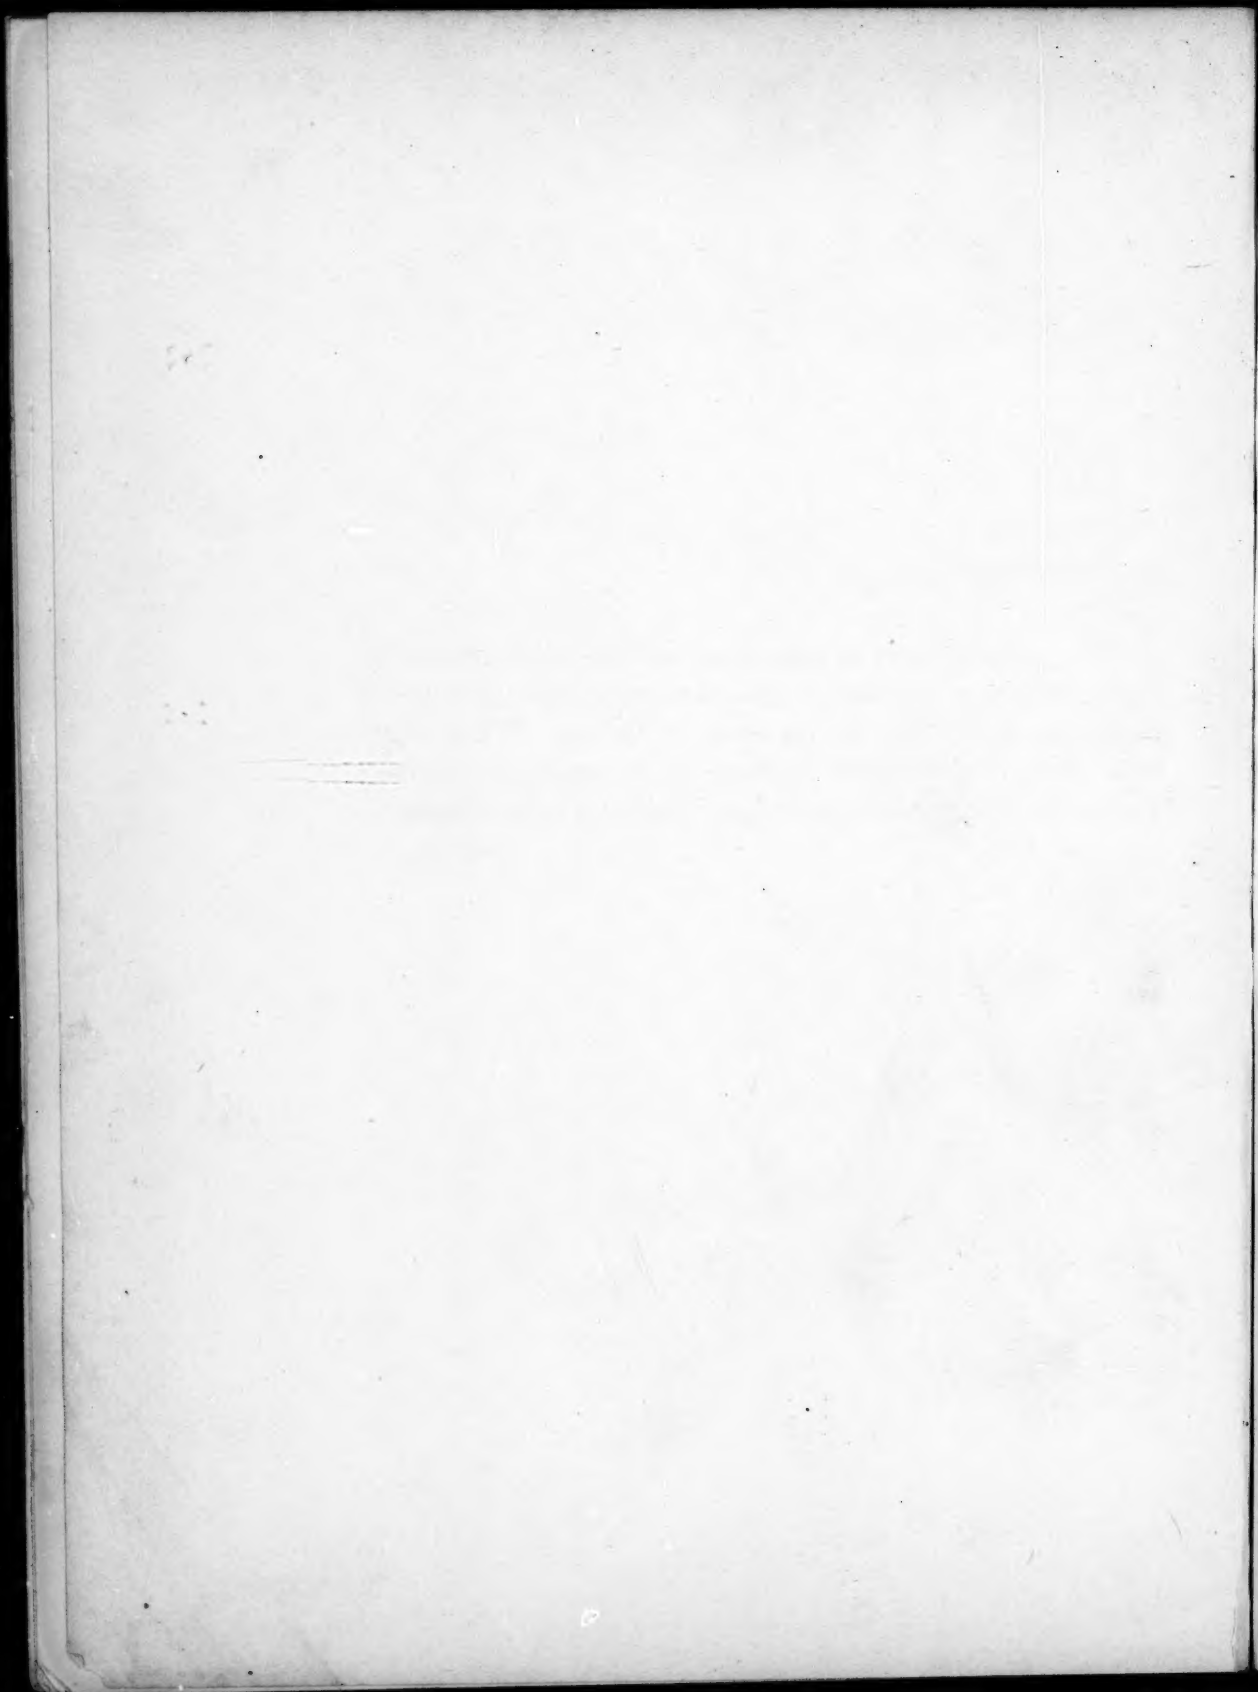

Charles Lamb probably meant to include indexes among his "biblia non biblia," but it is certain he never compiled one, or he would have had too high an opinion of them to do so. Personally I know of nothing involving more harassing labor than such a work; but it is pleasant to think that I have thus furnished the student with a key by which he may readily unlock the thirty volumes of the MAGAZINE, "rich with the spoils of time."

WILLIAM ABBATT.

The compilation of an index is one of those useful labours for which the public are rarely so forward to express their gratitude as they ought to be. We feel the merits of the case. There might be a variety of good directions given for the composition of these Tables (Indexes) which may be justly called the Soul of books.

—BAYLE.
